Report on activities of the Board of Directors

At the end of first-half 2024, the Lux-Pension SICAV sub-funds all posted positive absolute performances. They are summarised in the table below.

Sub-fund	SICAV
Lux-Pension 25	+0,69%
Lux-Pension 50	+3,01%
Lux-Pension 75	+5,26%
Lux-Pension 100	+7,84%
Lux-Pension Marché Monétaire	+1,23%

In the first half of 2024, the global economy showed more resilience than investors expected at the end of 2023. Indeed, investors expected growth to slow and inflation to converge rapidly towards central bank targets, prompting central banks in Europe and the US to cut their key rates quickly.

These expectations were dashed in the first quarter as a series of positive economic data paved the way for a soft landing of the economy rather than a recession. In this context, corporate earnings releases were convincing, offering a return of positivity to risky assets (equities and credit in particular), despite concerns about the Real Estate sector. At the same time, bonds posted losses due to higher-than-expected inflation and sharp revisions to expectations of rate cuts for 2024.

In the second quarter, the financial markets posted a mixed performance. Equities continued to rise, largely driven by a few stocks. However, sovereign bonds suffered as investors anticipated fewer rate cuts for the rest of the year, even as the European Central Bank (ECB) made its first rate cut since the pandemic. The focus was also on geopolitical risk in April, particularly in the Middle East. French assets fell in June after early legislative elections were announced. Towards the end of the quarter, there were also signs of weakness in global economic data.

The optimism inspired by the Utilities sector in a context where interest rates appear to be peaking was not rewarded, and exposure to this sector was reduced in early 2024 in favour of Consumer Discretionary, to gain in cyclicity and take advantage of the rise in real wages. At the same time, a more cautious approach was adopted towards Consumer Staples, which, in a soft landing scenario, were not expected to be the first to rebound.

Positions were taken in the small cap segment, which had underperformed large caps and offered attractive valuations. With lower interest rates likely to kick-start the economy, this segment could make a comeback in 2024, even if its rebound remains modest.

In the Basic Materials sector, the copper theme was favoured, particularly via Anglo American, by betting on the energy transition. Despite the failure of a takeover bid by BHP, mining companies' interest in the sector and a "Buy" versus "Build" momentum were highlighted. Nevertheless, due to the slow recovery in China, caution remained warranted, except with regard to copper, where the imbalance between supply and demand should support prices.

In March, a more positive view of the Communications Services sector was adopted, betting on consolidation and the end of the capex cycle in Europe. This consolidation could offer opportunities for growth and cost reduction. At the same time, exposure to the Industrials sector was increased to take advantage of the economic recovery in Europe.

The Real Estate sector, which had previously been absent, entered the allocation in February, benefiting from favourable economic conditions and renewed interest in tangible assets.

In the bond segment, with a recession seemingly less likely and corporate earnings resilient, part of the allocation to government bonds was switched to private bonds, in particular via the purchase of bonds issued by financial companies. At the same time, the credit segment (corporate bonds) saw its duration increase and arbitrages were made in order to select issuers that benefit more from the economic environment (sale of very high ratings) and offer better yields. In terms of sovereign bond positions, arbitrages were also made. A large part of the core bond positions (Germany and Austria in particular) were sold in favour of supranational and semi-core bonds. We also reduced our underexposure to peripheral countries, favouring Portugal and Spain. Overall, the duration of the sub-funds is lower than that of the market, with the intermediate segment appearing better positioned to benefit from future policy rate cuts.

In conclusion, the uncertain economic and financial environment did not hinder the ability to effectively navigate by adapting the portfolio's sector allocation and fixed income strategy in line with changing market and economic conditions.

In the Lux-Pension Marché Monétaire sub-fund, the weighted average maturity (WAM) was gradually increased by replacing bonds with WAMs of less than 90 days with securities with WAMs of more than or close to 180 days. A longer

WAM (around 160 days) makes it possible to take advantage of high yields for longer. Indeed, the ECB seems better positioned than its US counterpart to cut its rates in 2024, both in terms of size and the next rate cut date. The sub-fund is mostly invested in fixed-coupon bonds (90%), with the remainder placed in deposit accounts. Geographically, investments are mainly concentrated in Italy, France and Spain.
